

IS IT A GOOD IDEA FOR MY CHILD TO VISIT?

Think about the following:

Did the parent care for the child prior to incarceration?

Was the child well cared for and protected by the jailed parent?

Is the parent hoping to reunite with the child following release from jail?

Is there potential for a positive relationship, even if parent-child reunification is unlikely?

If you answered Yes to any of the above, visits might benefit your child. Visits are important for children because:

- Children love and miss their parent, and they worry about their parent.
- Visits can reassure children that their parents are okay.
- Visits maintain the unique and special parent-child bond.

When you sign up for a TeleStory video visit, you will be given tips for how best to prepare your child and ideas for making the visit go well.

The more you learn,
the more places you’ll go.”

— Dr. Seuss

TeleStory is a FREE video visitation program for children under age 13 who have a parent in the Ashland County Jail. Video visitations are available from locations at the Vaughn Public Library in Ashland and the Chief Blackbird Center in Odanah.

WHAT CAN I EXPECT DURING A TELESTORY VISIT?

- A welcoming, child-friendly space in a local library, ideal for one caregiver and one or two children.
- A 30 minute visit with access to books, games and toys to use during the video visit. The jailed family member will have access to the same materials.
